Health and Sexuality Education Standards in Oregon

The Human Sexuality Education Law (2009); the Healthy Teen Relationship Act (2013); and, the Child Sexual Abuse Prevention Law (2015) collectively contribute to the Oregon Department of Education's Comprehensive Sexuality Education policy framework. Approved by the State Board of Education in 2016, the Health Education Standards provide consistency in what is taught to students across Oregon to ensure equity in achievement and health.

Comprehensive Sexuality Education

The new Standards expand on the required knowledge and skills related to comprehensive sexuality education. They expand the notion of what sexual health is, treating sexuality as "a multidimensional process, intimately linked to the basic human needs of being liked and accepted, displaying and receiving affection, feeling valued and attractive, and sharing thoughts and feelings."¹ Thus, the standards cover broad areas including body image, media literacy, gender roles, relationships, and communication.

Building on the most current research and the National Health Education Standards², they do not promote sexuality or impose a set of values, but, rather, empower students to recognize, communicate, and advocate for their own health and boundaries. Many research studies have shown that this comprehensive approach works to delay sexual initiation, prevent unintended pregnancies, promote health, and reduce sexual violence and harassment^{3,4}. Although comprehensive sexuality education instruction is a challenge, it is required to replace the outdated model of abstinence-only education, which places young people at increased likelihood of pregnancy and STIs once they do become sexually active⁵.

Age-appropriate means curricula designed to teach concepts, information, and skills based on the social, cognitive, emotional, experience and developmental level of students.

Culturally inclusive means using materials and instruction strategies that respond to culturally diverse individuals, families, and communities in a respectful and effective manner.

Medically accurate means information that is established through the use of the scientific method. Results can be measured, quantified, and replicated to confirm accuracy, and are reported or recognized in peer-reviewed journals or other authoritative publications.

Curriculum can't be shame or fear based. Shame or fear based means terminology, activities, scenarios, context, language, and/or visual illustrations that are used to devalue, ignore, and/or disgrace students who have had or are having sexual relationships.

Positive family communication and involvement helps students learn to make responsible, respectful and healthy decisions.

Affirmative consent is an essential component of healthy sexual behavior. Course material shall promote positive attitudes and behaviors related to healthy relationships and encourage active student bystander behavior.

Inclusive materials means using language, and strategies that recognize different sexual orientations, gender identities and gender expression.
